

John Brightling - JM

Business Development Manager for Ammonia related industries

After joining ICI in 1987 as a Mechanical engineering degree from Leicester University – has over 35 years of technical & commercial experience in chemical, petrochemical and gas/syngas industries in a career which has involved experience in R&D, operations plant maintenance, fired systems engineering and most recently global sales, marketing and technical service related to Syngas catalysis. He is an active member of American Institute of Chemical Engineers Ammonia Committee, active in organising their annual Safety Conference.